Lankford Metals — © 2026. All rights reserved.

Lankford Metals is a private commercial metals, minerals, structured trade, offtake, and commodities finance platform. Information presented on this website is provided for institutional, commercial, and informational purposes only and does not constitute an offer to sell, a solicitation to buy, a commitment to lend, a commitment to purchase, an investment recommendation, legal advice, tax advice, accounting advice, engineering advice, geological advice, environmental advice, or a regulated financial promotion in any jurisdiction.

All proposed transactions are subject to independent underwriting, counterparty approval, documentary due diligence, KYC / KYB review, anti-money laundering screening, sanctions screening, source-of-funds and source-of-wealth verification, beneficial ownership review, title and chain-of-custody verification, assay and inspection review, export/import review, legal review, and final credit, investment, or trade committee approval, as applicable. No transaction shall be deemed approved, committed, financed, purchased, sold, brokered, arranged, or closed unless and until definitive written agreements have been fully executed by all required parties.

Lankford Metals conducts business subject to applicable laws and regulations, including, where applicable, anti-money laundering laws, counter-terrorist financing laws, anti-bribery and anti-corruption laws, economic sanctions programs, export controls, customs laws, responsible sourcing standards, conflict minerals requirements, forced-labor and human-rights diligence regimes, environmental standards, data protection laws, and other applicable United States, United Kingdom, European Union, United Nations, OECD-aligned, and local jurisdictional requirements. Lankford Metals reserves the right to decline, suspend, or terminate any inquiry or transaction involving sanctioned parties, restricted jurisdictions, prohibited goods, insufficient provenance, unverifiable beneficial ownership, unlawful conduct, inadequate documentation, unacceptable environmental or human-rights risk, or any matter that fails internal diligence standards.

Unless expressly stated in a definitive written agreement, Lankford Metals is not acting as a bank, broker-dealer, investment adviser, municipal adviser, securities exchange, futures commission merchant, commodity trading advisor, commodity pool operator, clearinghouse, regulated market, customs broker, tax adviser, law firm, engineering firm, assay laboratory, environmental consultant, or licensed fiduciary. Any financing, offtake, purchase, sale, advisory, sourcing, logistics, or capital markets activity is subject to jurisdiction-specific review and may require execution through appropriately licensed, registered, exempt, or otherwise qualified parties.

Lankford Metals supports responsible sourcing and risk-based diligence for minerals and metals supply chains. Counterparties may be required to provide documentation concerning ownership, mine origin, permits, licenses, assay results, inspection reports, export authority, taxes and royalties, environmental compliance, labor practices, human-rights risk, chain of custody, anti-corruption controls, and conflict-affected or high-risk area exposure. Lankford Metals may reference or align diligence expectations with recognized frameworks, including OECD mineral supply-chain guidance, market-standard KYC / AML protocols, responsible minerals practices, and applicable conflict minerals, sanctions, export control, and supply-chain due diligence regimes.

Forward-looking statements, indicative pricing, estimated transaction sizes, market commentary, underwriting scenarios, and illustrative structures are not guarantees of performance, approval, execution, closing, liquidity, valuation, commodity price, financing availability, or investor participation. Market conditions, commodity prices, legal requirements, counterparty risk, transportation constraints, inspection results, title issues, sovereign risk, currency controls, sanctions developments, and diligence findings may materially affect any proposed transaction.

Third-party names, standards, markets, commodities, jurisdictions, inspectors, law firms, lenders, traders, exchanges, or other references appearing on this website are for descriptive or informational purposes only and do not imply endorsement, authorization, agency, partnership, sponsorship, representation, or affiliation unless expressly stated in a written agreement. Logos, memberships, licenses, registrations, and regulatory statuses should be displayed only where currently valid and authorized.

Use of this website is subject to our Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Personal information submitted through this website may be used for inquiry review, counterparty diligence, communications, compliance screening, transaction evaluation, and recordkeeping, subject to applicable privacy and data protection laws. By submitting information to Lankford Metals, you represent that you have authority to provide such information and that it is accurate, lawful, and not misleading.
